Elijah Bouma-Sims '21

Majors:
Computer Engineering and History

Hometown:
Homewood, Alabama

Elijah Bouma-Sims is passionate about research, music, and public service. He has investigated the nature of automated call spam and YouTube video fraud, and co-authored several published and in-progress papers. He is part of the Power Sound of the South Marching Band and NC State Basketball Pep Band. Elijah has also served on the Park Scholarships Leadership Academy Diversity Planning Committee and the Krispy Kreme Challenge Committee. He intends to pursue a Ph.D. after graduation.

"Park Scholarships has allowed me to pursue educational and professional opportunities without worry for the cost, enabling my success even as my aspirations changed throughout college."

Elizabeth Dogbe '21

Major:
Civil Engineering

Hometown:
Knightdale, North Carolina

Elizabeth Dogbe believes in giving back to the community. She works with the Minority Engineering Programs on campus and serves as an ambassador for the Counseling Center and the Career Development Center. Within the Park Scholarships program, she mentors incoming freshmen during their transition to college. After graduation, Elizabeth plans to work for a civil engineering consulting firm and focus her career on improving equity and access in public transportation systems.

"Being a Park Scholar has helped me grow so much. Not only have I had access to incredible resources and opportunities, I feel empowered to effect change in my community."
